Interwrite Workspace Serial Number 15

I've also made some attempt for this but with no success: Application.Run

"C:\Users\Public\Documents\WindowsPowerShell\Modules\PowerShellGet\1.0.0\PowerShellGet.psd1" A: I think you'll need to run it as a package. To install a package programmatically you could use the System.AppDomain.UnhandledException method. This example assumes the script was saved in C:\G\scripts\test.ps1 # run with $args[0] being the location of your script $pshome = Get-ItemProperty -Path C:\ -Name PSHome [System.AppDomain]::UnhandledException += ( { $args[0] $errorActionPreference = [System.Management.Automation.ForceErrorActionPreference]::None # load the assembly containing the current script $assemblyPath = Join-Path $args[0] "C:\G\scripts\PowerShellGet.dll" # if the assembly was not found then exit with error if ([System.AppDomain]::CurrentDomain.GetAssemblies().Length -ne 1) { return $error[0] } # load the current assembly $assembly = [AppDomain]::CurrentDomain.GetAssemblies()[0] # load the main entry point of the assembly $method = $assembly.GetType().GetMethod("Main", [Reflection.BindingFlags]::Static, [System.Reflection.BindingFlags]::Instance, [Type[]] @( [Object], [Object[]] ), null, null, null) # invoke the method and ignore the result return $method.Invoke( [System.Object], [Object[]] @( [System.Reflection.BindingFlags]::InvokeMethod, $args) ) ) $scriptDirectory = Split-Path $pshome $path = "C:\G\scripts\test" Try
